The most apparent legacy of Pondy's colonial past is the French and Tamil quarters of the town; separated by a canal.

Firstly visit the French Quarter, distinguished by the Goubert Avenue which runs along the Promenade Beach. The manicured layout of the avenue is lined with heritage villas and buildings and statues - the most significant part of Pondy's history.

Then cross the canal to visit the Tamil Quarter which has its own architectural heritage, best demonstrated by restored mansions (like Hotel Maison Perumal) which feature semi-public street verandahs, central courtyards and large windows. The Tamil Quarter bustles with activity all day long and displays the Indian side of Pondicherry.

Meals - Breakfast Included.

Have delicious breakfast and take a drive to Trichy.

Visit the Rock Fort Temple Complex. It presides over Tiruchirappalli, perched on an immense rock that's said to be 3.8 billion years old (this makes it older than the Himalayas!). It's the city's most prominent landmark. The complex consists of three Hindu temples, as well as a fort.

Later visit the Jambukeshwar and Srirangam temples.

India Standard Time

Trichy - Chettinad/Karaikudi (Approx. 1 Hour and 30 Minutes drive)

Later, leave for Chettinad.

The origin of Chettinad begins in the 13th century when the Nattukottai Chettiars migrated to Karaikudi.

The most endearing symbol of the Chettiar era has been the Chettinad homes. From cuisine, architecture, furniture and customs, the rich and well-travelled Chettiars evolved a unique style combining western and eastern sensibilities. These result in an experience found nowhere else in the world.

The place with its Italian marble, European Cherubs, Athangudi tiles, and elaborate chandelier will leave you awe-stricken. As you wander within this mansion, you will also, come across a pictorial story on its walls.

Afterwards, go for Mansion Hopping. There are lots of abandoned mansions in and around Karaikudi. This is why Mansion Hopping is one of the topmost things on your list of Karaikudi sightseeing.

Visiting one of these will introduce you to the world of Mugappus and Valavus while showcasing the eco-friendly architecture of the place.

End the day by Shopping at the Karaikudi Antique Market.

Shopaholic or not, you must visit the Karaikudi Antique Market. A tiny lane filled with artifacts from the abandoned homes of Chettinad, the antique market of Karaikudi resembles a living museum. You can find the rare and original Ravi Varma paintings as well as the bronze sculptures of yesteryears. For collectors, there are tons of coins and old black and white pictures on sale. Antique furniture including metal benches, wooden pillars and artistic doors wait to find new homes.
